OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

The Department of Education is responsible for the education and training of the people of Newfoundland to the full extent of their abilities and desires. Its mandate spans the educational structure from kindergarten to postsecondary education and lifelong learning.

K-XII

The Province of Newfoundland and Labrador has a denominational education system at the K-XII level. Under this arrangement, responsibility for education is shared between the provincial Government, through the Department of Education, and the major Christian churches, through three denominational education councils: the Roman Catholic Education Council; the Integrated Education Council, which comprises the Anglican, Moravian, Presbyterian, Salvation Army, and United churches; the Pentecostal Assemblies Education Council.

The Seventh-Day Adventist Church also operates a school system, but it has relatively few students and is not part of the denominational education council arrangement.

The Government's Role

The basic responsibility of the Government is to see that the Province offers the best possible educational services to all students. This responsibility is discharged through the following means:

- The enactment of laws and regulations governing the operation of schools. This legal framework provides for, among many other things, the establishment of school boards and their responsibilities, the certification of teachers, the allocation of teachers to boards, and the funding of educational programs.
- The development and prescription of basic courses of study. Prescribed textbooks are supplied to school boards free of cost or at a subsidized rate.
- The establishment and maintenance of educational standards. This is done through such measures as the certification of teachers and the testing and evaluation of pupils. Also, strict health and safety standards govern all school buildings.
- Education is financed through payments to school boards. Money for school construction is paid to the denominational education councils.

Altogether, the Government pays directly for about 95 percent of the cost of this component of education. The remaining five percent is raised locally through school taxes and assessment.

The Churches' Role

The churches are represented in the K-XII sector of the educational system through denominational education councils. The task of these councils is as follows:

- Determining how and where money will be spent for new school buildings, extensions, and equipment.
- Recommending to Government the establishment and alteration of school district boundaries.
- Recommending to Government the appointment of school board members.
- Recommending the initial certification of teachers.
- Prescribing religious education programs.

School Boards

There are 29 school boards in the Province administering the day-to-day operations of schools. School boards are responsible for such things as the organization of schools within their districts, the fixing of attendance zones, the repair and maintenance of school buildings, the employment of teachers and other staff, and the transportation of pupils.

Under The Schools Act, at least two-thirds of the members of each school board must be elected by popular vote. School board elections are held every four years, coinciding with municipal council elections. Every school board meeting, unless it is a privileged meeting, is open to the general public. Through participation in the electoral process and attendance at meetings, the general public contributes to educational decisions made at the community level.

Advanced Studies

This component comprises Memorial University, institutes, community colleges, and private training institutions. In 1990, the Government announced changes to the postsecondary education structure, which will be made during 1991. The structure described below reflects the status quo before the release of the Government's white paper on postsecondary education.

Boards

To conduct the affairs of postsecondary institutions (not including the private training schools), the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador has established a board of regents for Memorial University and eight boards of governors for the institutes and community colleges.

The Board of Regents of Memorial University is appointed pursuant to the Memorial University Act. It comprises the Chancellor of the University (ex officio), the President (ex officio), the Vice President (ex officio), seventeen members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and six members elected by the Alumni. The Board is responsible for the management, administration, and control of the property, revenue, business, and affairs of the university. The boards of governors for the three institutes and the five community colleges are Crown corporations, and are subject to the provisions of the Corporation Act. Each board comprises the President (ex officio), up to ten members appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council, and one student member selected by the student association. The boards are responsible for directing the affairs of the institutions, determining courses and programs (subject to the Minister's prerogative) and enacting bylaws for the conduct of business.

Memorial University of Newfoundland. The University has full power and authority to establish and maintain such faculties, colleges, schools, institutions, departments, chairs, and courses as the Board of Regents may deem meet; to give instruction and training in all branches of knowledge and learning, including physical instruction and training; to grant degrees (including honourary degrees), diplomas, and certificates of proficiency; to provide facilities for original research in every branch of knowledge and learning and to conduct and carry on such research; and, generally, to promote and carry on the work of a university in all its branches.

Besides the main campus in St. John's, the University operates a second campus in Corner Brook, Sir Wilfred Grenfell College. The college offers the first year in all programs offered by Memorial University (except Music), the first one or two years of most professional and nonprofessional university degree programs, and the entire four years of the Bachelor of Fine Arts (Visual Arts) and Bachelor of Fine Arts (Theatre) degrees.

Provincial Institutes. There are three provincial institutes: Cabot Institute of Applied Arts and Technology, Fisher Institute of Applied Arts and Technology, and the Institute of Fisheries and Marine Technology. These institutes are responsible for delivering provincial programs at the diploma level in applied arts and technology. They are also involved in applied research and technology transfer and the brokerage of programs with the community colleges and the university.

Community Colleges. There are five community colleges: Avalon, Eastern, Central, Western, and Labrador. The colleges focus primarily on the delivery of certificate-level programs and special programs geared to local needs. The colleges also deliver diploma and degree courses brokered from the institutes and Memorial University.

Private Schools. There are a number of private training institutions in Newfoundland offering employment-oriented training for a wide range of occupations. All private training institutions offering a course of 50 or more instructional hours in a vocation are required by law to be registered by theDepartment of Education. Registration ensures that these schools are following the act and regulations pertaining to private training institutions.

THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Structure

The Office of the Minister consists of the Minister of Education, the Deputy Minister, and four assistant deputy ministers. These officials are responsible for administering the Department of Education and its legislation through its four branches.

The Primary, Elementary, Secondary Branch has four divisions: Program Development, Student Support Services, Evaluation and High School Certification, and School Services and Professional Development.

Program Development is responsible for all courses of study, except religion, for elementary and secondary schools. It is also responsible for the selection and distribution of texts; the acquisition, production, and distribution of supporting materials (audiovisual, etc.); distance education; language programs; and the administration of the Official Languages Bilingual Agreement.

Student Support Services is responsible for special education programming, guidance, retention, the Newfoundland School for the Deaf, and hospital schools. The Division coordinates programs offered through the Atlantic Provinces Special Education Authority.

Evaluation and High School Certification is responsible for planning, organizing and managing, evaluation; administering the high school certification system; and providing decision-oriented information to policy makers in the Department and educational agencies. Specific areas of responsibility include program evaluation, student evaluation and assessment, achievement monitoring, national and provincial indicators of performance, school improvement activities, item banking, test scoring and analysis, student achievement data banks, and the monitoring of high school certification requirements.

School Services and Professional Development is responsible for liaison with school boards and other educational agencies in the interpretation and application of legislation, regulations, and departmental policies pertaining to the operation of schools. The Division is also responsible for school services, field services, teacher certification, approval of school construction projects, and coordination of professional development.

The Advanced Studies Branch has three divisions: Postsecondary Education, the Industrial Training Office, and Student Aid.

Postsecondary Education is responsible for the regulation, coordination, and evaluation of public and private postsecondary programs. Program consultants and management personnel assess provincial training needs and conduct program development, revise existing provincial programs, carry out analyses of program proposals submitted to the Department, design and implement program evaluation strategies, initiate and conduct research into new instructional methodologies and technologies, research and provide for postsecondary staff development, fulfil the Department's obligations with respect to pertinent aspects of acts and regulations governing the postsecondary sector, and provide a liaison with other departments and agencies provincially, nationally, and internationally.

Industrial Training is responsible for meeting the needs of employers for skilled tradespersons in the Province through the interprovincial Red Seal Program. Industrial training consultants implement the provisions of the Apprenticeship Act.

Student Aid provides financial assistance to students attending postsecondary institutions.

The Corporate Planning and Policy Branch has four divisions: Research and Policy, Communications and Publications, the Literacy Policy Office, and the Women's Educational Services Office.

Research and Policy is responsible for strategic planning and policy development, statistical support, research and evaluation at the corporate level, and the coordination of resources from various areas of the Department for special projects that require a corporate perspective.

The Communications and Publications Division is responsible for communications, publications, and records management. This division manages and distributes information for all branches.

The primary responsibilities of the Women's Educational Services Office are the coordination of gender equity initiatives in the Department and referent educational agencies and the provision of leadership and consultative services in the development and implementation of policies.

The Literacy Policy Office coordinates literacy initiatives in the Province's postsecondary education system.

The Finance and Administration Branch is responsible for the formulation, implementation, evaluation, and control of policies and procedures relating to finances, accounting, administration, and personnel. This is done through four divisions:

Financial Services and Operations provides financial, accounting, internal control, budgeting, general fiscal control, administrative, and business management services for the department and administers the Teachers' Pensions Plan.

External Financial Relations is responsible for the administration of all financial aspects of the provincial educational system, including grants to school boards and postsecondary institutions, pupil transportation, and school tax authorities.

Human Resources provides personnel services, including staffing, administration of collective agreements and related policies, payroll services, and coordination of staff training policies with the Public Service Commission.

Systems and Methods is responsible for coordinating, reviewing, and managing electronic data processing resources; assessing manual administrative systems; and advising senior officials on the use of these resources.
